

June 21, 2010

To our valued Customer,

In March of 2010 we published a new LB Brass price list. Within that price list there were a number of items that had the status code "DWO" or discontinued when out of stock. Due to strong response from our customer base, the majority of those items have now been switched to status code "SO" or special order, meaning they are still available.

Therefore, our current LB Brass product line is very similar to what you have known. With the exception of the Metropolitan Collection which we have elected to discontinue, all other items that have been available either via stock or special order are still available. Please discard the March 2010 price list and replace it with the enclosed updated list.

We are aggressively working on our new product launch set for November 2010. We will offer four new collections and a new tower display program. Additionally we hope to have our website; www.lbbrass.com redone and re-launched with many new features that we believe will make it the most user friendly website in our market segment.

We thank you for your continued support and business.

Respectfully,

Matt Webber
Sales Manager-LB Brass